Record where you search, search statements, and results so another searcher could redo your search. Use the back as needed.

Write your research question and underline the main concepts:

List the descriptors from the ERIC thesaurus corresponding to your research question’s main concepts:

Record your searches along with the number of results. For three of your searches, list one promising-looking article title and its source (journal title):